Drive In Aid of Wood's Home

A drive has been organized in aid of Wood's Children's Home, and within a few days practically everyone in the district will be called on for contributions.

While cash is probably somewhat scarce with most people, with the abundant harvest reaped in this district practically everyone should be able to contribute in kind to so good a cause. Cash, of course, can always be used, but wheat, vegetables, meat and fruits will be very acceptable. When the truck arrives at your door kindly make the callers welcome and donate according to your ability.

King Hiram Masonic Lodge, having members throughout the district, have consented to take care of the collection, and the following committees have been organized:

Chairman, Mr. J. McDougall.
Sec'y-Treas., Mr. J. A. McElroy.
Publicity, Mr. J. E. Gooder.
Storage, Messrs. R. Barrett and W. McFarquhar.
Transportation, Dr. Clarke and Dr. Liesener.
Collections:
Town, Messrs. McDougall, Gooder and Brusso.
Country West, Messrs. H. Hosen, E. Craig, McElroy, McDougall and McFarlane.
Country East, Messrs. G. Burns and Floyd Ahlgren; Messrs. J. Topley and H. Richardson; Ellis Barnes and D. Jenkins. W. M. Smith.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

Santa Claus at Builders' Hardware

Despite the cold and stormy weather last Saturday, the annual Santa Claus day at the Builders' Hardware went over with the usual success.

Kiddies and their parents came in from all parts of the district and we saw one truck loaded with 24 youngsters drive in for the occasion. Santa arrived at 10:45 a.m. and the store was crowded with youngsters eager to see him. Throughout the day he was busy handing out treats and by six o'clock almost a thousand bags of candy and nuts had been given out.

Mr. Speelman was delighted with the reception the affair got and says it is one of the big days for him and apparently the kiddies think it is a big day too.

Didsbury Dairy Calf Club Holds Meeting

A meeting of the Didsbury Dairy Calf Club was held in the basement of the Public School last Thursday evening, when about seventy people attended.

The purpose of this meeting was to hear Delbert Levagood relate his experiences on the trip to the Royal Inter Fair, where he and Tom Clarke represented Alberta as junior dairymen. The club invited the dairymen of the district and all interested to attend.

Delbert gave a very interesting talk, telling of the things he saw and learnt while on the trip. This he did in a 50 minute lecture which everyone commended very highly. The club was very proud to know that Delbert took so much interest and all hope that he continues and becomes one of the country's leading agriculturists.

Mr. Jas. Murray, principal of the Ojima School of Agriculture, gave an address on what he considered was the most practical agricultural activities, specializing on conditions of localities.

The meeting was addressed by Mr. Tom Dunlop, president of the local Dairymen's Association. Mayor Choudhury also gave an address.

After the meeting a lunch was served by the girls of the club.

Hockey Notes.

The first hockey game of the season to be played on Didsbury ice will take place this Saturday night at 8 o'clock, when Didsbury High School "Aces" meet Bowden in the High School Hockey League. Carstairs, Didsbury, Olds, Bowden and Innisfail have each a team entered in the league. The following is the schedule of the Didsbury team for the season:

Dec. 10: Bowden at Didsbury
Jan. 10: Bowden at Bowden
Jan. 12: Carstairs at Didsbury
Feb. 2: Carstairs at Carstairs
Feb. 7: Olds at Didsbury
Feb. 9: Innisfail at Didsbury
Away games with Olds and Innisfail which were scheduled earlier in December are postponed till after Christmas.

The two highest teams in the league will play off for the cup purchased by the league.

Curlers Ready to Go.

The snappy weather of the last week has made it possible to get the ice at the rink in shape, and the first draw was started Wednesday night.

The two sheets of ice appear to be in splendid shape, and the improvements made in the waiting-room will add to the comfort of both curlers and spectators.

The meeting for choosing skips and the drawing for rinks was held Monday evening, and the enthusiasm shown bids fair for a very successful season. Several new names appear on the list, a few have dropped out and there are several "comebacks."

The president, Mr. J. A. McElroy, said that the Curling Club was organized in 1909, with Mr. W. G. Liesemer as president and that there are five members who curled the first year still in the game, namely: Messrs. J. V. Berscht, H. W. Chambers, W. G. Liesemer, A. G. Studer and H. M. Reiber. It is also interesting to note that Messrs. Berscht and Liesemer are still using the same rocks they had in 1929.

Mr. J. V. Berscht announced he would donate 4 Forsyth "Tally Ho" shirts as a prize to the winners of the first schedule.

Following is a personnel of the rinks:

Brusso, skip; W. Wyman, W. Smith, McKenzie-Gilves.
Berscht, skip; C. Reiber, T. Wyman, H. Sinclair.
Fisher, skip; W. Morton, O. Carleton, Fawn.
Edwards, skip; Keith, Halliday, Wallace.

Scientists Are Making Good Headway In Solving The Secrets Of The Ocean's Depths

From seas which pirates sailed for two centuries in search of Spanish gold the yacht "Caroline" has now sailed to Washington with new treasure found in the ocean's depths.

This new treasure comes from attempts to answer the question, "How deep is the ocean?" as well as, "What is in the ocean depths?" The answers, so far, are incomplete. But that revealing discoveries have been made to the store of human knowledge is certain. Still, the survey from the "Caroline" which includes studies in the physics, chemistry and marine and plant life of the waters north of Puerto Rico, covering an area extending from Santo Domingo to the Virgin Islands, has only begun.

Under the direction of Dr. Paul Bartsch of the Smithsonian Institution, the expedition, planned for two months has been made possible by the joint effort of a group of scientists and the co-operation of Eddard Reeves Johnson, who contributed the use of his yacht and financed the assembling and installation in it of special equipment and apparatus.

This winter's exploration was in reality in the nature of a sampling expedition. Primarily it was planned for the purpose of determining what scientific equipment was needed for a detailed survey which is to continue through four winters. Actually much more was accomplished. The Caroline gathered many specimens of deep-sea plant and animal life.

The region just north of Puerto Rico is interesting for one reason, among others: It is the deepest known part of the Atlantic. Depths in excess of five miles have been found the greatest one, the Blake Deep, being 28,300 feet, and yet greater ones near by may be discovered. Modern electric sounding equipment by means of which waves of sound are flashed into the deep to be echoed back from the bottom and automatically recorded was lent by the navy to check old records or establish new ones.

A single boom, such as might have been seen on a freighter, mounted on the quarterdeck was outwardly the only indication that the "Caroline" might be on some special mission. But inside there was not only modern sounding equipment, but instruments for measuring water temperature at different levels; for detecting trends of currents and analyzing the water itself.

Steel cables bearing fishing lines miles long. There were traps and nets and bait of colored electric lights to lure the luminous denizens of the deep—fish with head and tail lights. Much as bait is snatched from the hook by a bass, huge nets, twenty-five feet across, or traps of heavy pipe and wire-net construction, were torn from the steel fishing lines a thousand feet or more below the surface of the Atlantic.

One of the most important results of the winter's cruise was the successful testing of new methods of underwater photography. Two specially designed cameras proved their worth. One was effective 100 feet below the surface while the other was used at depths down to 1,500 feet.

At times the open deck of the "Caroline" which attains the laboratory was covered with thousands of brilliantly colored creatures of the deep sea, swimming travelers to a new world of light and air. Here, where there was ample light, Dr. E. E. Clevenger, the artist, painted feverishly to catch the quickly changing hues of some specimen previously not seen by man.

One Qualification

Data was in the middle of her singing lesson when her mother arrived on the scene. After listening for some time she broke in:

"An—er—how is my daughter getting on? Do you think she will eventually make a great singer?"

The music teacher seemed at a loss for words.

"Well, madam," he said at last, "it's rather difficult to say."

"But you must know by now if she possesses some of the qualifications," said the girl's mother, sharply.

"Well, she's got a mouth," replied the teacher. London Answers.

Bicycle Grows In Favor

Figures For September Show Big Increase In Imports

Certitude that the bicycle is coming into its own again is shown by the importations. Although September is supposed to be late in the year for a great sale of wheels there were actually 515 imported compared with 32 a year ago. As usual the greater number came from the United Kingdom; there were 499 British and 16 from the United States. Contrary to experience 33 motor cycles came from the United States and seven from the United Kingdom. Usually the majority of these imports are British. However in the case of motor cycles also there were more imported than a year ago.—Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Operates From Light Socket

Tiny X-Ray Capable Of Photographing Entire Body

The smallest X-ray built in this country was demonstrated for the first time to the American Congress of Radiology, at their recent convention in Chicago. Radiologists from all over this country and abroad attended.

The small unit is rated at 58,000 volts and ten milliamperes, and stands in marked contrast to the mammoth 800,000-volt X-ray tube recently installed for cancer treatment at Mercy Hospital, Chicago. The new device operates from an ordinary light socket, is shockproof, and may be operated in perfect safety by any layman—a combination of virtues long sought by the X-ray industry.

The small set is capable of making X-ray photographs of the entire human body or it may be carried around and used for making diagnostic examinations in industrial plants. It can be used in restaurants to examine clothing, baggage or packages at news kiosks and at the examination of the inspection of horses' ankles, in cat and dog hospitals, or for such work as fluorescent examination of aeroplane parts.

The baby X-ray can be used with perfect safety by the average man and is of particular value in the examination of suspicious packages, it was stated.

Jewish Soldiers Honored

Bulgaria Tunes In Monument To Men Lost In Great War

A monument to the unknown Jewish soldier, dedicated to all Bulgarian members of that race who laid down their lives in the Balkan wars and the world war, has just been unveiled at Sofia, the ceremony being attended by both Jews and Christians.

Speeches extolling the valor of Bulgarian Jews in fighting the Christian king were made by Gen. Vateff and Col. Tadjler, who recalled that out of 5,000 Jews mobilized before the armistice, 500 were killed in action.

The Bulgarian Jew has always been conspicuous for his bravery and the Bulgarian Maccabees are said to have given the smartest "turnout" at the International Jewish Congress recently held in Jerusalem.

Wreath Was Forgotten

Ceremony To Honor Noted Dieppe Navigator Was Spoiled

An international ceremony was called off at Montreal because the participants forgot to bring along flowers.

A party of distinguished guests from France and Mexico gathered near the city hall to pay tribute to Vanequelin, noted Dieppe navigator of the 18th century, and to place a wreath on his monument. Greetings were exchanged. Speeches were made. And then the ceremony was called off. Somehow, it was explained, forgot to bring the wreath.

LONDON'S TAXI-DRIVERS IN THE MAKING

All types of men are training for the taxi drivers' examinations at the Central Knowledge of London School at Paddington, England. Hundreds of smart new taxicabs are being put on the streets and proprietors are looking for drivers to match the cabs. Over 8,000 London taxi drivers have been passed from the school since 1919. It is estimated that in a four-and-a-half miles radius of Charing Cross, London, there are 4,200 miles of streets, so the student's task is by no means an easy one. Our picture shows one of the classes in progress, with the teacher explaining some intricate traffic regulation in the heart of the British capital.

Interest Is Quickened In Trans-Atlantic Air Travel By Survey Of Northern Route

In Memory Of Hinkler

Symbol Erected On Alps 5,000 Feet Above Sea Level

The late Bert Hinkler, great Australian air ace and squadron leader in the British Air Force, will be a symbol for all fliers from Britain to The East.

The Aero Club of Arizona has erected to his memory a fine column of white limestone, standing 5,000 feet above sea level, on the Tuscan Alps, near the spot where he crashed last January during one of those furious storms which frequently assail the highlands.

He had left London and was heading for Sydney, Australia. Nothing was heard of him from the morning of his departure from the British capital until four months later in May, when a shepherd going up the Alps near Florence crossed the path near Campo Magna, and saw wreckage sticking out of the partly melted snow.

Beneath lay Bert Hinkler's body and the remains of his aeroplane. His diary showed that he had had stormy weather and was trying to cross Italy to reach Brindisi before his next hop to Persia. He must have lost his way in the storm and crashed on a mountain side.

The memorial is a remarkable landmark, and in clear weather can be seen for miles around.

Market For Wheat

Opportunity To Sell Canadian Wheat Exists In China And Japan

Increased markets for Canadian wheat exist in China and Japan, John M. Inrie, managing director of the Edmonton Journal, told the Young Men's Canadian Club at Toronto.

In order to benefit western Canada, he said, there must be fullest co-operation in carrying out the London wheat agreements; willingness to extend concessions to the east for markets for Canadian wheat; reformation of western agriculture to develop diversified farming; stimulation of production; creation of price stabilization boards for domestic-sold products; extension of intermediate agricultural credits and formation of a farm products marketing commission.

While The Wind Blows

Bob Marquis, a farmer near Abernathy, Texas, need pay no electric light bills. He is a budding Edison and has installed on the farm house roof a wind motor which operates a generator which charges a lead battery which ignites an automobile light bulb. The battery gives him only one light but Marquis never did use more than one coal oil lamp, so he is completely satisfied with his electrical system.

Interest in the future of trans-Atlantic air travel has been quickened markedly by the survey flight of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh over the Greenland route.

London dispatches give assurance that expert advisers of Canada and the Motherland are not lagging at a time which calls for foresight and vigorous initiative. Announcement of one new project after another testifies to the interest of all the larger Powers in the mapping of the world's airways.

According to the London reports, agreement was reached at the Anglo-American air conference in St. John's, Newfoundland, that Harbor Grace should be the Atlantic Coast terminus for overseas flights. Harbor Grace, it would appear, is to become the "fork of the road," one route running from there to New York, while the other, via Montreal, will serve Canada.

Although the Lindbergh journey was undertaken largely to survey landing-field facilities in Greenland, the decision of the Anglo-Canadian authorities is said to favor direct overseas flights between Newfoundland and Iceland, without touching foreign soil. Steps in Greenland would, of course, involve the co-operation of the Danish Government.

The reported plans for the all-British route seems to be in consonance with the most recent developments in the matter of aircraft construction. The Pan-American Airways, which Colonel Lindbergh represented, is building six large flying boats with a range sufficient to span the Atlantic. Toronto Globe.

Working For Peace

British Foreign Secretary Tells About Nation's All-Round Policy

Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, told financial London at a luncheon the other day that Britain's all-round foreign policy possessed qualities that would contribute mightily to a peaceful solution of current problems. "We have tried to conduct our affairs," he said, "on a basis that we mean to maintain, so far as we are concerned, on friendly relations with all the world. We mean to make no select or special alliance which is bound in its turn to provoke some counter combination. We mean everywhere to support all policies and all movements in all countries that are honestly aimed at the restoring of that thing, invaluable in itself, but so necessary for the recovery of commerce—credit and confidence."

No Simple Test

Varieties Of Mushrooms, Determined Only By Careful Study

H. T. Gussow, Dominion botanist, says in a letter to The Ottawa Journal that there is no simple test to determine which are good mushrooms, and that many of the tests commonly used are survivals of the dark ages. "They peel very easily," they have such a good odor," I boiled some, and put with them a silver coin, and it did not turn black," may be true statements but they decide nothing concerning edibility. Only by careful and detailed study can a collector know which varieties to avoid. Toronto Star.

Evening Was Worn Out

Gus Mancuso, New York City's caddy, is credited with one of the best wins cracks of the recent World Open. In the final game of the series at Washington the teams went into the tenth inning with signs indicating that they might still be playing when the moon came over the mountains. Mancuso walked up to the 19th, counted his balls and said, "See, I still have what I can tell the 19th—see, man, this's not filling for 19th—see, time has any more."

An Aerial Railroad Set

All the radium produced at 200 Poudre, South Australia, the only radium field in the British Empire, has been sold. In seven million yards 224 cubic millimetres of radium were produced from six tons of ore. The year was delivered in seven tubes, each about a quarter of an inch long, and about as thick as a lead pencil.

Every once in a blue moon a great story, powerful in its dramatic qualities, throbbing with the heart beats of honest emotion, comes to the screen.

Such a story is "What Price Innocence?" showing at the Opera House this Friday and Saturday.

Here and There

One of the largest cargoes of lumber shipped from Saint John on the Canadian Atlantic sea coast was forwarded to Great Britain recently. It consisted of 2,315,000 feet, mostly of deals.

Output of nickel in Canada in 1932 totalled 30,327,568 pounds valued at $7,179,952. Production during the first six months of 1933 amounted to 22,302,424 pounds as compared with 21,162,786 pounds for the corresponding period of 1932.

Every home at some future date will have "air conditioning" and the word "heating" will pass out of use among home owners. J. J. Donovan, General Electric Company expert, told a largely attended meeting of the Electrical Club at the Royal York hotel, Toronto, recently.

Sleep grades of the Rocky Mountain areas presented no difficulty to the Royal Scot, crack British flyer, en route to Winnipeg and the east from Vancouver recently. The all-British train is attracting great popular enthusiasm throughout Canada on its return journey to Montreal.

Montreal's "million dollar hole" on Dorchester street, where a railway terminal was to have been built, will become the world's most costly sunken garden, if Canada sees eye to eye with a couple of Montreal aldermen who advocate beautifying the gash with flowers and shrubs.

Canadian Pacific employees under 21 and minor sons of employees are again offered the opportunity of two University of Montreal scholarships by competitive examination, according to an announcement by Grant Hall, senior vice-president of the company. Applicants have until May 1, 1934, to make application.

Twenty-one months of training in a recognized shop, junior matriculation or its equivalent and a course in an academy to be established in Toronto is the ordeal for barbers and hairdressers. It was voted at a meeting of tonsorial artists at the Royal York hotel, Toronto, recently.

Five ports hitherto not on the schedule of world cruise liners have been added to the 1934 itinerary of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, when she leaves New York, January 4 next. They are Semarang, Java; Boeleleing and Padang Bay, Island of Bali; Penang, Straits Settlements; and Zamboranga, in the Sulu Archipelago.

In making a choice between transportation by rail and by road, shippers should consider what the railroads are doing and have done for their advantage. G. G. O'Malley, development commissioner, Canadian Pacific Railway, told the Rotary Club of London, Ont., recently. He cited many cases where the railways had first inventoried, then developed the natural resources of the continent.

City of Calgary Imposes Truck Tax

Truck drivers resident outside of the city, who bring only their own goods to the city markets and who do not hire themselves out to other truckers, will not require a city car license, stated Chief of Police David Ritchie Friday.

Many queries have been received following a recent test case in which two drivers were found guilty of bringing in other farmers' goods and charging for the trip. It was claimed that they required both the provincial and the city license plates on their trucks.

Once a driver hires himself out as one who charged to bring in products owned by others, he makes himself liable to the double license.
Otherwise he does not need more than the provincial license, the chief stated—Calgary Herald.

Honor Horses Of History

Many Countries Represented On Panels In Plaza At Dublin

Fourteen incidents in which horses played an important part in history are depicted in six many panels painted by the widely known Irish artist, John Keating, for the Plaza in Dublin, where the drawing for prizes for the Irish sweepstakes is held.

Paul Revere's ride is the subject for the section from United States history, one of the first and not the least important of the events in the American War of Independence. Napoleon's horse, "Marengo," is seen in another of the panels. It was captured in 1799 by a French soldier during a battle with the Turks in Egypt. The animal carried Napoleon from that time until it was wounded at Waterloo.

Canada is represented by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Painted by Dick Tappin and Black Box; Spain by Don Quixote and Rosinante; England by Lady Godiva; Belgium by Roland's ride from Ghent to Aix; and Ireland by Emma, March, a race horse famous in English history in which a woman had had speed with a horse.

In "Portrait of Tower Hill," published and written by Rev. T. B. Clayton, pair of the Tower Hill movement, and B. R. Woman's Weakness

It is a common thing for a woman to feel that she is weak, and that she is not strong enough to do the things she wants to do. This is often the case with women who are suffering from some form of weakness, such as anemia, or a general lack of vitality.

There are many causes for this weakness, and it is important to find out what the cause is, and then to take the proper steps to remedy it. In many cases, the weakness is due to a lack of iron in the blood, and this can be remedied by taking a course of iron treatment.

It is important to remember that weakness is not a permanent condition, and that it can be overcome by the proper treatment. If you are suffering from weakness, do not despair, but take the proper steps to remedy it, and you will soon be able to do the things you want to do.

Cottage To Australia

Victorian Government Buys Yorkshire Home Of Captain

James Cook, the famous 18th century navigator who planted the British flag in Australia and New Zealand, is to be commemorated in Australia by the translation to Melbourne of the actual Yorkshire cottage built by his parents.

It is a small 18th century two-story cottage of mellowed red brick, built at Great Ayton, Yorkshire, by the father of Capt. James Cook the discoverer of Australia, and it is shortly to be dismantled and taken to Melbourne, where it will be re-erected to be the symbol for all time of the ties between the commonwealth and the mother country.

Bought by the Victorian Government for $4,000, it has been surveyed and charted, numbered brick by brick and beam by beam, so that it can be put up in its original state, probably in a new park, for Victoria's large scale centenary celebration in the autumn of 1934.

Disembarkment of the fabric under skilled supervision begins in a few weeks' time when the parts will be packed and shipped to Australia. The ivy which covered the cottage has already been taken down and stored at a Darlington nursery. It will be re-planted when the building is re-erected in Australia.

Red brick and stone flooring, as well as the old fireplace and door lintels which had been removed for the convenience of modern tenants of the cottage and safely kept by the owners, will be replaced in their right positions.

Capt. James Cook, English naval captain and explorer, was born in 1728 and died in 1779.

Operator Who Despatched Antiochite Telegram Replies After Long Service

A man who sent a telegram which made the world rejoice, the telegram that ended the Great War, is being sent after 46 years' service as a telegraphist at the Brighton post office.

He is Frank Hilber, Pennington, aged 69 of Addison Road, Hove, England.

During the war he was telegraphist to Lord Haig at Advanced General Headquarters and he sent out the historic telegram on November 11, 1918.

His duties will cease at 11 hours today, November 11. Telegrams will start out on the line re-acted at that hour, which will be recorded by wire to Advanced General Headquarters.

Defensive precautions will be maintained. There will be no intercourse of any sort with the enemy until receipt of instructions from G.H.Q. Further instructions follow. Addressed to all concerned from Chief Adjutant G.H.Q.

Mr. Pennington was on duty at Montreal at the time.

Clever Golfer Is Sightless

Legless Caddy Leads Blind War Veteran And Directs Putts

Since J. Aitken, of Cowgate, 225-land, returned from the war, totally blind, he has been playing golf. And now he can make a perfect 150 yard drive and putt with amazing accuracy.

The sightless golfer perfects his game by tireless devotion. At every hour of the day he was out on the course practising, with the aid of his caddy, until he had perfected the system which overcomes his handicap.

The caddy has lost both his legs. He not only followed Aitken's drives and leads the golfer to them but is an invaluable aid in putting. He taps the metal casing of the hole and, guided by the sound, Aitken makes his putts.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl," Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she should have. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peter know that he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's friend, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her something she should know about Peter. Gus tells Camilla Peter is a cheat, that he only wants her money, and that he, Gus, loves her himself. At that moment Peter appears on the scene and knocks Gus flat. On the way home from the party Camilla tells Peter they are going to do something about their problem. She decides that they are to be married, and until Peter establishes himself, so on living their separate lives. Above Peter's protests she carries her point. Gus leaves Peter and Peter and Camilla make plans for their marriage. They decide not to tell Mrs. Hoyt, who wants to see Camilla marry money. They are married quietly and over their wedding dinner together, happily talk of their life and dislikes Peter takes her home to his new studio and presents her with a piece of statuary he has been working on secretly, as a wedding present. They decide that they are going to be wonderfully happy despite the fact that they will be living apart.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XVIII.

Camilla lost no time in looking for a position. She might have taken her summer of leisure and happiness without a care, but that was not like Camilla. Already she experienced a wave of panic when she thought of the possibility of being dependent upon Peter. Of course, she never would allow herself to do that, but she knew that the only way in which she could free him of that responsibility was to get a position and prove that she could take care of herself adequately. That had to be proved, too, before the day arrived when she would no longer be dependent upon the Hoyt resources.

She preferred to relinquish that dependence as soon as possible, now that she was secretly married to Peter. There was one thing in her favor, that her career embraced one of the few kinds of business that were prospering in the midst of the depression. Advertising demanded the services of more commercial artists than any other activity, and advertising was one of the few lines that prospered when business was low. The less business there was, the more desperately competitors advertised their products and contended for the favor of the buying public.

There was no reason for her to consent to the help wanted columns in these days. No one needed to advertise for help and little was needed. A change in the personnel of any business was more likely to dispose of surplus help than to require more. Camilla surmised that her only chance was to submit working proofs of her originality, hoping that they would attract the optimistic eye of some advertising expert.

She worked out a set of water color pictures in the modernistic style of angles, of which she was rather proud. There was also a group of juvenile subjects that she had sketched during hours of watching the children who came to play in the park and of which diversion she neglected. These she arranged in a portfolio and set out, with a list of advertising agencies in her purse.

Already, she had been Peter's wife for a week, during which he had permitted her no time to consider an occupation. They had talked for hours and walked in the park and shared frugal little dinners in small restaurants that proclaimed their courtesy of "Tables for Ladies." But neither of them minded this economical manner of getting acquainted.

Discovering all the little faults and virtues of each other, learning what subjects to avoid in their conversations that might irritate the other—every moment of these was exquisite joy. And the quality of food or the service of waiters was of infinitesimal consequence, as compared with smiling into each other's eyes across any table and sharing little intimate jests that interested no one in the world except themselves.

These things would go on forever, of course, but in this genesis of their life together, it was so sweet just to forget everything else and delight in its novelty. It was Camilla who insisted that they must both get to work earnest, else their future would be a happy future, of which they talked and dreamed so confidently. The summer term at National began, and Peter resumed his studies and work with new gravity, while Camilla began her quest for employment.

The experiment with marriage was just one of modern youth's desperate efforts to adjust itself to the complicated demands made by life and a rapidly changing world. In the process of immemorial experience, it makes some striking and daring attempts to solve the increasing problems of marriage. But being brave and candid and loyal, most of them revert again to the same basic fundamentals upon which life began.

Reconciling the standards and ideals of the past with present economic problems is not a task which can be accomplished in a day, nor by one theory. It must be worked out slowly and painfully, as any problem is solved, at the expense of effort and human happiness.

Rebellious and defiant, youth takes matters into its own hands when conventions and economical crises become entangled, only to discover that the primal laws of nature are stronger than all the other combined elements ranged against them, and they fall back into step again.

Young America the real present pioneer Americans fiercely loyal to its new nation, yet lingering wistfully in foreign traditions, presently was one of the most critical of these problems. Their situation is not so different from that of the early pioneers of America, except in its outward aspects. The same ingenuity, fortitude, endurance and faith is required of them to conquer their new world. Just so, Camilla and Peter Anson faced a strange wilderness of danger and a life of conquest when they entered their marriage experiment, as did these new nations that set out in covered wagons across the prairie and mountains and deserts to conquer the west of young America.

When Camilla began to state her requests for work at the various agencies advertising managers regarded her with varying attitudes of incredulous scorn, but those who deigned to look at her samples raised their eyebrows with mild interest and were a little more cordial when she took her leave. However, they were very sorry—they could give her no encouragement. Their staffs were quite adequate in the present situation, also satisfactory, and a voluntary resignation was about as probable as a snowstorm in the Sahara.

In one office, a Mr. Bowman was a trifle more enthusiastic, but just as vague about any possibility of needing her services.

He seemed surprised at her industry in the face of existing conditions. "You did all of all these without a definite use for them—just for samples? Most applicants think they are doing well to have one idea floating around their head."

"Oh, I have many other sketches and water color subjects. I develop every idea I have, even if it isn't very promising at first. One never knows what might be evolved from it in the process of working it out," she explained sedately. Folk invariably told her that she looked like a little girl, and Camilla feared that the agency managers would think so, too. So she searched her vocabulary for cruller phrases.

Mr. Bowman smiled with amusement. "You like to work, then?"

"Why, of course. I should think everyone would like to work—that is, if he can do the kind of work he enjoys. Drawing is my work and my pleasure, too."

"Well, most people imagine they would like to work if they could get it, that's different. Perhaps it is like everything we want when we get it." "You mean," he asked, "you get things we have wanted, we lose interest in the possession. But work is different, isn't it? Getting it is only the beginning toward an end."

"Many people don't think so," her adviser mused. He seemed to be in a leisurely and conversational mood, for which Camilla was grateful. These little excursions into the business element and contacts with its administrators were a revelation to her, and valuable.

You would be surprised how many people believe that if they just had a chance to do something important, they would meet the requirements. Yet they never would consider doing the work first, on the possibility of its meeting unknown requirements. It is so much easier to dream than to do, and more popular to have faith in self than to prove it. You interest me because you have worked dreams into reality and proved to yourself what you can do. The work is excellent. I am only sorry that there is no possibility of my taking you on."

"I appreciate your compliments, Mr. Bowman. You give me encouragement."

"You need it particularly now. But always remember this: no matter how clever you are or how industrious, there are always many others who are cleverer and more industrious to compete with you. That explains why the dreamer can't get in at all. It is difficult enough for those who are capable and willing to work."

Camilla reflected that she might resent this man's colloquial practical observations, except that she knew he was right and knew what he was talking about. She felt a little friendly toward him as he took her name and address and promised to let her know if he had anything she interested in. Had he done that, so it delineated nothing in particular. It was just as probable that she never would see him again.

Not New Phenomenon

Making Enemies Is Characteristic of German Diplomacy

Noel Porter, British correspondent at Munich who was put in prison for describing heavily armed Storm Troopers in a Hitler review, symbolizes not only the efforts to throttle the press in the Reich and foreign newspaper men as well, but the ultimate cause of Hitler's determination to make as many enemies as possible in the rest of the world.

This is not a new phenomenon. It has been characteristic of German diplomacy, in many respects, for sixty years and has caused incalculable harm to the German nation. Hitler tells his people that they are "tinged about by foes" and proceeds to make more enemies for Germany at every turn with his hostile persecution of the Jews, the toleration and policy of attacks upon peaceful foreigners in Germany and now this persecution of a reporter who, in describing merely what he saw, has "injured" the Hitlerite by adding a few new facts to the growing accumulation that show they really are turning Germany into an armed camp. —New York Evening Post.

Little Helps For This Week

"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Philippians 4:6.

We tell thee of our care,
Of the sore burden pressing day by day,
And in the light and joy of thy face,
The burden melts away.

We breathe our secret wish,
The importunate longing which no man can see,
We ask it humbly, or, more restful still,

We leave it all to Thee,
—Susan Coolidge.

That prayer which does not succeed in moderating our wish, in changing the passionate desire into still submission, the anxious tumultuous expectation into silent surrender, is no true prayer and proves that we have not the spirit of true prayer. That life is more holy in which there is least of petition and desire, and most of waiting upon God, that in which petition most often passes into thanksgiving. Pray till prayer makes you forget your own wish, and leave it to merge it in God's will. The Divine wisdom has given us prayer, not as a means whereby to obtain this world's good things, but as a means whereby we can do without them; not as a means whereby we can escape evil, but as a means whereby we become strong to meet it. —E. W. Robertson.

Program Printed On Silk

Used At Montreal When Late King Edward's Birth Was Celebrated

A program printed on silk of the fireworks display held on the ice in the St. Lawrence River in front of Montreal on the night of February 10, 1912, to celebrate the birth of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward, has been presented to the McCord National Museum, McGill University, by Mrs. George Ahern of Montreal.

Judging from the finely printed list of events the celebration must have been a magnificent affair, as the fireworks included: "A Tree Trunk With Fixed Star and Illumination," "Figure of Eight Illumination," "Two Splendid Chinese Fountains," "New Moon With Fixed Stars," "The Royal Salute was fired by the Montreal Royal Artillery, according to the program, which concluded with "God Save the Queen."

Checking Up Motor Offenders

A strong appeal to the motoring public of Alberta to co-operate in bringing about a stricter observance of highway traffic regulations, coupled with a clear warning to all motorists that a close check-up on infractions of the motor vehicles act and regulations is now being made by the police throughout the province, has been issued by the Government of Alberta. During a recent check-up of one of the main highways by members of the R. C. M. P., a flagrant disregard of the provisions of the act was revealed. As a consequence, a special police circular, issued by direction of Col. H. M. Newson, officer commanding "K" division, and concurred in by the Provincial Government, has gone out to all detachments in the division calling for as strict a supervision of traffic as possible, and a close check-up on infractions of the law. As a result of this, some 390 warnings to motorists were issued during the month of November by the police, and there were 78 prosecutions.
